Distance education is the process of giving education to students who are not physically present in a classroom. All the instructions and course materials are delivered to the students by post or through the Internet. Some people are not able to attend regular courses. Distance education gives such people opportunity to learn and grow. Under this system, they can choose the timings of their study as they like.

Distance education is also called distance learning. The internet has made this form of education more popular. Many universities around the world are using this system to reach out to students in remote areas.

It was earlier believed that the distance education system had many disadvantages. The biggest problem was a lack of individual attention and personal communication with students. However, technology has now solved this problem as well. Using satellites, it is now possible for distance education students to get in touch with their teachers. This also helps them in getting their questions solved directly. Thus, we can say that distance learning is a flexible form of learning where a student can study from home at his own speed.

i)   What is distance education?

ii)   Give the synonym of the word 'Personal'.

iii) What is the disadvantage of distance education?

iv)   What opportunity does distance education give to the people who are not able to attend regular courses?

v)   What has made distance education more popular?
